

Writing Boot Camp!!

Work It!!!! & Write It!!!!

Eye Of the Tiger

Read Aloud: Those Shoes

Listen Carefully as I read this text to you.

As I read think about ideas you have about the text:

- Character Traits
 - Ideas about Character's relationships
 - Ideas about Motivation
 - Ideas about how the character changes
 - Lessons the characters learn
-

Words To Know:

Claim – is a statement the writer is trying to prove true

Also know as a Thesis Statement.

CLAIM - IS A STATEMENT THE WRITER IS TRYING TO PROVE

Character Traits	Ideas about Character's relationships	Ideas about Motivation	Ideas about how the character changes	Lessons the characters learn

CLAIM - IS A STATEMENT THE WRITER IS TRYING TO PROVE

Character Traits	Ideas about Character's relationships	Ideas about Motivation	Ideas about how the character changes	Lessons the characters learn
		Jeremy longs to fit in.

CLAIM - IS A STATEMENT THE WRITER IS TRYING TO PROVE

Character Traits	Ideas about Character's relationships	Ideas about Motivation	Ideas about how the character changes	Lessons the characters learn
		Jeremy longs to fit in.		Jeremy learns that being a good friend is having a cool pair of shoes.

Read Aloud: Those Shoes

Our Claim:

“Writers, today you are going to stretch yourselves. Today you are going to select an idea to write about. As you decide on another class claim, push yourselves to pick an idea from a different category.”

With Your Partner Reread the story.

Find & Underline Evidence that supports the claim the more evidence the better!

Writers look for the evidence that is strongest. They rank their evidence from strongest to weakest. They think about which is more important, the biggest part of the story, and which is more minor. Then, they include the bigger, more important evidence and leave out the minor stuff.”

“Work Out” Your Essay In The Air

Right now, we are going to do this using our idea about Those Shoes.

To begin, writers find it helpful to tell the reader which story they are writing about and then name their claim.

Next, writer's support that claim with evidence from the text.

You might say, “For example...” (Top 3)

Finally, you’ll want to offer up a way to conclude their essays

-The way the story ends - lesson learned - Restate your claim -

“Write It” - Flash Draft

Right now, we are going to do this using our idea about Those Shoes.

To begin, writers find it helpful to tell the reader which story they are writing about and then name their claim.

Next, writer's support that claim with evidence from the text.

You might say, “For example...”

Finally, you'll want to offer up a way to conclude their essays

-The way the story ends - lesson learned - Restate your claim -

Boot Camp Process:

1. Close Read the Text
2. Generate Ideas About the text
3. Choose One Idea to Write
4. Find the “Best Evidence” to support your idea
5. Work Out Your Essay in the Air
6. Flash Draft Your Essay
7. Use the checklist to review your essay